The security forces in Kashmir are “waging a war against a war”, as an elaborate plan is being hatched to oust the elected government in the state in response to its rejection of the centre’s ultimatum on Jammu and Kashmir’s special status, The Indian Express has learnt. The separatists claim that they will go ahead with their plans for an uprising on August 4 after the sunset of Article 35A of the constitution, which reserves to Jammu and Kashmir a special status that allows the state “a special status in the Union”. Sources said the armed forces have been keeping the situation under watch to prevent plans being implemented, as on August 4, a general strike will be called across the valley, with the area witnessing an outbreak of violence for the first time. The centre has clearly understood the separatists’ plan to trigger an incident. As a precautionary measure, the state’s special status has been scrapped, the centre has imposed restrictions in the state, and the security forces have been told not to allow anyone access to the Valley without “force”. Bans on movement of people between the different parts of the Valley have been imposed, and the Armed Forces (Special Powers) Act (AFSPA) was not withdrawn on August 4 as the state government asked. On May 13, five weeks after the centre stripped Jammu and Kashmir of its special status, and the governor’s rule was imposed in the state, Peoples Democratic Party (PDP) chief Mehbooba Mufti was formally elected as the chief minister of the state.
